

Jodi Brockington, the Director of Diversity and Inclusion Sourcing and Corporate Social Responsibility for the Depository Trust and Clearing Corporation (DTCC), helps to develop a pipeline of diverse talent and acquire the most qualified candidates for the organization. DTCC is the premier post-trade market infrastructure for the global financial services industry. From operating facilities and data centers around the world, DTCC automates, centralizes, and standardizes the processing of financial transactions across the trade lifecycle and mitigates risk for thousands of institutions worldwide.

Before joining the DTCC team, Brockington served the Chief of Staff for Culture Shift Labs (Culture Shift Labs), an advisory and management consultancy firm that advises Tech & Fortune 500 companies, large non-profits, leaders, cities and philanthropists on creating and activating growth and innovation through diversity and inclusion and other contractors.

Prior to her role at CSL, she sat as the Director of Fund Development and Corporate Relations for the New York Urban League, was the Founding New York Urban League Young Professional President, and as a Consultant to the National Urban League for the last 10 years. Brockington has produced and hosted the National Urban League Jobs Network's Digital Career Success Series since 2012 and works on the development of the Small Business Matters Summit, alongside hosting the Pitch Contest since its inception in 2011.

Jodi Brockington is an entrepreneur, speaker, published author, and one of New York's top lifestyle coaches and fitness experts. She owns NIARA Consulting (NC), a full-service company that provides complete consulting services for individuals, nonprofits, small businesses and corporations. NC consultants are experienced and dedicated professionals with many years of business development and strategic planning experience under the tutelage of Brockington.

Additionally, one of Brockington's recent accomplishments includes completing the Goldman Sachs 10,000 Small Business Program. She used this program to further develop her strategic niche marketing business, NIARA Consulting.

Brockington's leverages over 15 years of marketing and business development experience in the nonprofit, corporate, and government sectors to consult for individuals, nonprofits, small businesses and corporations, as well as offer career and college coaching for millennials and professionals. As mentioned earlier, she also is a health and wellness, fitness expert.

Brockington is a graduate of University of California at Los Angeles, with a Bachelor's degree in Sociology and Psychology. In addition, she has an MPA in Public Administration from Baruch College and an MSW from University of Southern California. She resides in New York City.